1. ORGANIZATION.

1. The Veterinary Service of an Army in the field is organized and controlled by a Director of Veterinary Services. Its function is to promote efficiency by preventing and reducing wastage amongst the animals of the Army.

2. The general principles governing this service are contained in Field Service Regulations, Part II, and more detailed instructions as to their execution are given in this manual.

3. Veterinary hospitals are located on the Lines of Communication for the treatment and care of sick and injured animals of the field army. Mobile Veterinary Sections are provided to relieve field units of all sick and injured animals, and convey them to veterinary hospitals.

4. Base and advanced veterinary store depots are formed for the upkeep of veterinary equipment.

5. The personnel allotted to the above units is laid down in War Establishments.

2. DIRECTOR OF VETERINARY SERVICES.

1. The duties of the Director of Veterinary Services are defined in Field Service Regulations, Part II, Chapter III.

2. He advises on all technical matters, and subject to the instructions of the Commander-in-Chief (or of I.G.C.), conveyed to him through the Quartermaster-General's branch of the staff, controls all arrangements in connection with the Veterinary Service. He commands and is responsible for the distribution and co-ordinate working of the veterinary personnel with the force. He is assisted by one or more Deputy-Directors, and is represented in divisional commands by Assistant Directors.

3. The offices of the Director and Deputy-Director or Directors will be located as may be ordered from time to time by the Commander-in-Chief.

4. The Director or a Deputy-Director will, when necessary, precede the Army to the theatre of war and make such preparatory veterinary arrangements at the base and Line of Communications as may be necessary for its reception.

5. He will draft such orders as may be necessary in connection with the veterinary arrangements of the force, and will keep such diaries and records of veterinary work in the field as may be required. He communicates directly with his representatives on all matters of technical detail in connection with his service.

6. He will carry out such inspections and make such recommendations as he may consider necessary regarding the health and efficiency of the animals of the force, and will closely supervise the veterinary arrangements.

7. He will take necessary measures to prevent the retention of sick and injured animals not likely to become serviceable again.

8. The duties of the Director with reference to the provision of veterinary stores are referred to in Section 13.

3. DEPUTY-DIRECTORS OF VETERINARY SERVICES.

The duties of a Deputy-Director of Veterinary Services are broadly those indicated for the Director, differing only in degree; his responsibilities being confined to that portion of the force to which he is accredited.

4. ASSISTANT DIRECTOR OF VETERINARY SERVICES OF A DIVISION.

1. The Assistant Director of Veterinary Services is the responsible adviser of the commander and his staff on all technical matters appertaining to the veterinary service of the division.

2. He administers the personnel of the Army Veterinary Corps allotted to the division, and in regard to technical matters controls and issues orders to them directly. Orders and instructions in respect of other matters affecting the veterinary personnel allotted to units are communicated to commanders of brigades and units.

3. Under the orders of the divisional commander, and in consultation with the staff and representatives of other services concerned, the Assistant Director of Veterinary Services will, when necessary, draft paragraphs regarding veterinary matters for inclusion in divisional orders.

4. He will forward direct to the officer in charge of advanced veterinary store depot all requisitions for veterinary medicines and equipment required by units in the division, duly examining them with a view to the prevention of waste, and the exercise of all possible economy.

5. He will furnish to the Director of Veterinary Services every Sunday, a telegraphic state under the following headings:—“Remaining Last Report,” “Admitted Since,” “Cured,” “Transferred Sick,” “Died,” “Destroyed,” “Missing,” “Remaining Under Treatment,” and “Total Strength of Formation.” This state will include casualties up to and for the previous Thursday, and will be supported by Army Form “A 2000” rendered by post. A copy of the telegraphic report will be sent for information of the Deputy-Director of Veterinary Services, and a duplicate of the Army Form A 2000 to the Officer i/c Army Veterinary Records at the Base for statistical purposes.

6. In subordinate commands to which no assistant director is allotted, the senior officer, Army Veterinary Corps, is the representative of the Director of Veterinary Services, and the responsibility for the efficient administration of the veterinary service in the command will devolve on him. His duties are analogous to those of an Assistant Director of Veterinary Services, and will be performed in addition to his executive duties.

5. OFFICERS ATTACHED TO UNITS.

1. A veterinary officer attached to a unit is responsible for the treatment of all sick and injured animals with that unit. He will advise commanders of units which animals should be transferred to mobile sections for conveyance to veterinary hospitals, and is responsible that the labels referred to in Appendix II are attached to animals before they are handed over.

2. He will immediately bring to the notice of commanders of units any points which may bear upon the health and condition, or affect wastage of the animals under his professional care.

3. He must be ever on the alert to prevent the introduction or spread of contagious diseases; he will make frequent and careful inspections, which should be carried out as opportunities are afforded by the military situation.

4. He will inspect all horses joining the unit, and will immediately report all suspicious cases and outbreaks of contagious disease to commanders of units and to the Assistant Director of Veterinary Services of the formation.

5. Every Friday he will send the Assistant Director of Veterinary Services a weekly return (Army Form A 2000) of sick and injured animals in the units under his care. This return will include casualties up to Thursday evening. He will keep a record in Army Book 32 of all cases treated.

6. All requisitions for veterinary stores will be submitted through the Assistant Director of Veterinary Services.

6. OFFICERS ATTACHED TO REMOUNT DEPOTS.

Officers, Army Veterinary Corps, are attached to Remount Depots as shown in War Establishments; their duties are analogous to those laid down in Section 5 for officers attached to units. They correspond directly with the Director of Veterinary Services or his representative on the Lines of Communication on all technical matters.

7. OFFICERS ALLOTTED TO THE ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE AT THE BASE.

1. An Officer, Army Veterinary Corps, will be allotted to the Adjutant-General's office at the Base to deal with correspondence and documents relating to the Army Veterinary Corps personnel engaged in the campaign. He will receive his instructions through the Deputy Adjutant-General at the base.

2. He will prepare the veterinary statistics from information supplied by the Assistant Director of Veterinary Services of formations and Officers Commanding Veterinary Hospitals.

3. He will submit such periodical consolidated returns as may be desired by the Secretary of the War Office.

8. VETERINARY ESTABLISHMENTS WITH UNITS.

1. Veterinary officers are allotted to units as laid down in War Establishments.

2. Veterinary arrangements for units for whom no veterinary officer is provided will be made by the Assistant Director of Veterinary Services of the division, but when these units are in brigade areas they will be in charge of the veterinary officer attached to the headquarters of the infantry brigade quartered in the brigade area. On the line of march or in emergency they will apply to the nearest veterinary officer.

9. MOBILE VETERINARY SECTIONS.

1. Mobile veterinary sections are field units, one being allotted to each division and Cavalry Brigade. Their personnel is laid down in War Establishments.

2. Their function is to take charge of sick and injured animals sent to them under proper authority and convey them to veterinary hospitals.

3. Subject to the orders of divisional commanders, their movements are controlled by the Assistant Director of Veterinary Services of the formation.

4. Sick and injured animals are despatched from railhead in the returning supply train. The officer commanding mobile veterinary section will report to the railhead commandant, who will detail trucks for the purpose.

5. A conducting party of one man per truck and one N.C.O. in charge will be sent with each consignment, every man being provided with a canvas bucket for watering on route.

6. A statement in duplicate (as pro-forma Appendix III) showing number of horses transferred, will be sent with the conducting party, one copy being signed by the receiving officer and returned as a receipt.

7. All cases will be dressed and attended to previous to despatch. Particular attention is to be given to the provision of sufficient fodder for the journey, and that animals are securely tied up.

8. The officer commanding the receiving hospital is responsible for the return of the conducting party without delay. On reaching railhead the party will travel on the supply column lorries to refilling point, from thence rejoining sections.

9. On despatch of each consignment, the officer commanding mobile veterinary section will notify by wire the Deputy-Director of Veterinary Services of Army or Cavalry Corps concerned, and officer commanding receiving hospital, giving numbers and date.

10. In the case of Mange, truck numbers will be included in these wires, and rugs and blankets of the horses will accompany them to the hospital.

11. When the division is stationary, the mobile veterinary section will also act as a temporary hospital for selected cases which may recover before further movement is ordered. Considerable discretion must be shown in choosing suitable cases for retention under the circumstances, and when cured they will be returned to units.

12. The N.C.O. in charge of a returning conducting party will be responsible for the drawing and conveyance of any veterinary stores required by the formation to which his mobile veterinary section is attached.

10. VETERINARY HOSPITALS.

1. Veterinary hospitals, allotted on a scale proportionate to the strength of the Armies in the Field, are stationary units located on the Lines of Communication, at such places as circumstances indicate advisable.

2. The personnel is as laid down in War Establishments.

3. All sick and injured animals will be transferred to them for treatment, and when cured will be handed over to the nearest remount depot.

4. The situation of a veterinary hospital will depend on the local conditions, and advantage should be taken of existing buildings whenever available which could be adapted to the requirements of a veterinary hospital in providing shelter from the weather for sick and debilitated animals. When no buildings can be utilized, the hospital will be laid out on a plan suggested by the Director of Veterinary Services in co-operation with the Director of Works, and approved by the I.G.C.

5. The choice of site should also be dependent on its accessibility to the railway station or siding at which sick animals consigned to it would be detrained, an adequate water supply, and facilities for obtaining supplies and forage.

6. In all hospitals suitable provision should be made to ensure efficient isolation of animals suspicious of or suffering from contagious disease. Outbreaks of the latter will be at once reported to the Director of Veterinary Services, the source of infection being stated.

7. The officer commanding is responsible for the sanitary condition of the hospital and quarters or localities occupied by the personnel, and will arrange for a systematic disposal of refuse and carcases of animals dying in hospital by burning or other methods. He will make arrangements for detachments to meet sick animals arriving by rail.

8. He will furnish the returns laid down in Field Service Regulations, Part II, for commanders of units. He will also furnish to the Director of Veterinary Services daily (by noon) a telegram giving the alterations in strength under the following headings:—

“Admitted,” “Died,” “Destroyed,” “Cast and Sold,”
“Cured,” and “Remaining under Treatment,”

a duplicate of which should be sent to Officer i/c Army Veterinary Records at the base, and a weekly return, on Army Form A 2000, made up to Thursday evening.

11. VETERINARY CONVALESCENT DEPOTS.

1. One or more veterinary convalescent depots will be located on the Lines of Communication, as circumstances indicate. They are intended for the reception of such cases as require only rest and good feeding.

2. Arrangements for these, whether in open fields or kraals, will depend upon climatic conditions, or upon the feasibility of obtaining land suitable for the purpose.

3. The personnel will be as laid down in War Establishments.

12. DEPOTS FOR VETERINARY STORES.

1. A base depot of veterinary stores as laid down in War Establishment will be located at the base, and an advanced depot will be attached to the advanced or receiving veterinary hospital. Both of these depots will be administered by the Director of Veterinary Services.

2. The officer in charge of the base depot of veterinary stores will submit to the Director of Veterinary Services requisitions necessary to keep the stocks up to requirements.

3. The officer in charge of the base depot will comply with indents received from the officer in charge of advanced depot, and also from the officer commanding veterinary hospitals on the Lines of Communication. Any abnormal demand will be referred to the Director of Veterinary Services for such action as may be necessary.

4. The officer in charge of the advanced depot of veterinary stores will deal with the indents received from Assistant Directors of Veterinary Services of formations, the stores being conveyed to the formations by means of returning horse-conducting parties of mobile veterinary sections.

5. No local purchase of veterinary stores will be made except by special authority of the Director of Veterinary Services. Purchase or sale by units is prohibited.

13. SUPPLY OF VETERINARY STORES.

1. Arrangements will be made for the despatch to the theatre of war of a supply of veterinary stores and equipment which is calculated to last three months.

2. The Director of Veterinary Services is responsible for the maintenance of sufficient stocks in the theatre of operations to meet requirements. He should utilize any available local sources of supply. Demands for stores from home should be made sufficiently in advance to admit of them arriving at the base as required.

14. AUDIT OF ACCOUNTS.

1. Accounts will only be rendered for base depots and advanced depots from which stores are issued in bulk. The accounts will be kept in Army Book 169, a detail being kept of all stores received. Receipts will be taken on charge immediately the articles are delivered, and the vouchers filed. All issues from these depots to veterinary hospitals, &c., will be treated as final. Entries in the accounts will be supported by receipted vouchers where possible. If, owing to exceptional circumstances due to war conditions (which should be explained), receipted vouchers cannot be obtained, evidence that the articles were indented for and despatched should be obtained and put up with the account in support of the issue.

2. The accounts will be balanced half-yearly, or as mutually arranged between the Director of Veterinary Services and the local auditor, and will be forwarded to the latter for audit not later than the end of the month following the date of closing.

3. Stock is to be taken from time to time as circumstances permit by the officer in charge of a depot. Immediately after the termination of hostilities, boards of officers will be appointed to take stock of stores of every description at the depots. The officer in charge of a depot will previously balance his account up to the date of stocktaking, and the board will count personally the articles in possession. The articles thus counted will be entered as "Stock on (date)" by the officer in charge, in a line below the "Remain" in his account, and the correctness of the quantities as shown will be certified by the Stocktaking Board. The discrepancies between the "Remain" and "Stock" will be shown by the officer in charge, the surpluses in one line and the deficiencies in another below the "Stock." The account will then be rendered for audit, accompanied by the proceedings of the board, and a statement from the officer in charge giving an explanation of the discrepancies, together with the recommendation of the Director of Veterinary Services.

4. A new or "peace" depot will also be started, such stores as are in good condition and required for issue being separated from the old or "war" depot stock and transferred by voucher to a "peace" account. The officer in charge of the old depot will be held responsible, as far as the exigencies of the service permit, for the old depot account until the stock is disposed of. Any stores which may be considered as unfit for issue will be dealt with in accordance with Regulations.

5. In the case of veterinary stores in hospitals and with units, &c., similar stocktakings will be made, and the stores remaining immediately brought on charge in the ordinary "peace" accounts. All veterinary stores not required for current use will then be returned to the nearest depot, and struck off in the account supported by the usual vouchers.
